RABBIT PESTS.

The havoc that would have been wrought had the so-called Belgian "hares" been let loose in this State is sufficiently demonstrated by the condition of affairs in Australia. The latest dispatches from that part of the world say: "The rabbit pest is worse this year than ever, inflicting by thousands districts where they have not hitherto been troublesome. The Federal government has been asked to offer a bonus of $10,000 for some practicable scheme for their eradication."

The rabbits of Australia all descend from a couple imported from England as pets and allowed to run wild. They bred until the animals have become a menace to the agricultural and pastoral industries. Some of the colonies have had a standing reward offered for years for any means of destroying the jumpers, but nothing has been devised that has proven successful. Removed from their native land, where natural enemies kept them in check, the rabbits found no opposition in nature to their development. Nor is Australia the only land that has suffered from the mistaken efforts of animal importers—as Jamaica with her burden of the mongoose can testify, and California with her German carp pest can bear witness.

In this State we have the jack "rabbit" (which is really a hare) and even the coyotes and snakes cannot altogether prevent his prodigious growth. If the Belgian "hare" (which is really a rabbit) had been allowed to breed wild in such an environment as it would have in California, there cannot be a doubt that the farmers and cattle and sheep men would have been nearly ruined in a few years, just as their Australian fellows are now.

THE APPLICATION FAILS.

Such lectures as those of a distinguished Frenchman who is visiting us would be interesting to people of his own nationality, but we fail to see how one bred in an English and American community can derive benefit from a discussion of the attitude of Gallic dramatists toward, for instance, the institution of matrimony. It is interesting from an ethnological point of view, but as a literary study can be of no avail, any more than would be a discussion on Australasian or Scandinavian ceremonies of espousal.

The American girl is given credit for morality and her parents, recognizing this innate quality, set no spies upon her in the shape of chaperones and dummies. She does pretty much as she pleases, and so does her English cousin, with, perhaps, a tinge more of reserve in her mind and her manners. Sometimes she yields to her parents' wishes when they run counter to her own pride of a husband should be, but not often, and ordinarily it is father and mother who accept the inevitable and the daughter marries the man who has paid his addresses without a sign of parental interference. The young people make up their own minds and live their own lives, and so it goes on generation after generation. But "they order these things better in France," as Lawrence Stern remarked in his "Sentimental Journey." There, matrimonial engagements are settled between the parents, and the parties themselves might as well be unknown as the "N" in the service as prescribed by the Book of Common Prayer. The girl is carefully watched and guarded from lightheadedness and becomes free only when the husband chooses for her by her natural guardians gives her a measure of her own. When the American girl marries, as various writers have pointed out, she ends her freedom, while, on the contrary, Miss Française steps to personal liberty only when she becomes Madame.

It is natural, therefore, that French writers should view marriage from a standpoint entirely foreign to that of the American or English author, and lessons drawn from the plays of the Dumas, pere and fils, are utterly without application to any phase of our own life and letters.

The billion dollar steel trust is confronted by a competitor, a four million dollar corporation having been formed for that purpose. On the lines that money talks, the new comer will have a hard time making itself heard, for, as compared with its giant rival, it won't be able to speak above a whisper.

A Brooklyn doctor says that there is no such thing as infectious disease and adds that fear causes the spread of contagion. In view of the indisputable evidence to the contrary it looks as if that particular medical theory is trying to get his theory adopted so as to insure an increase of business.

Restaurant keepers across the bay have applied to the Police Commissioners for the appointment of some of their employees as special policemen, the point being that the stars thus worn would prevent the striking waiters from interfering with their business. What is the matter with utilizing their star boards for that purpose?

San Rafael and Sausalito are to be connected by a trolley line. In view of the habits of the hosts of Britishers who live over that way it is liable to prove more of a pipe line than anything else.

J. Cal Ewing, the manager of the Oakland baseball team, reports the loss of a valuable diamond. However, he should not be wholly disconsolate—the diamond has not lost him.

An Oakland man wants a divorce because his wife smokes cigarettes. He is evidently more put out than the cigarettes.

COMPELITION IS INEVITABLE.

No more convincing proof could be furnished of the inability of the trusts to crush out all opposition than the fact that the Colorado Fuel and Steel Company, which was not taken into the billion dollar combination, has succeeded in placing its bonds for $5,000,000 and is ready to enter the field as a well equipped competitor of the Morgan corporation. Twenty years ago this company made itself felt in the West, but the railways were ultimately induced to make such rates that it lost its business. Now, however, it has the backing of billions who own railways themselves, and, despite the wealth and power of its tremendous competitor, it enters the business world with every prospect of securing good results. It is at least assured of a fair field and no favor.

This certainly goes far to prove that the great organization of capital and industries called trusts are not by any means capable of crushing out local competition. Theoretical socialists halt the combines as the end of that awful bugbear, Bismarck's "iron law of wages," and the herald of the destruction of that naughty thing, the competitive system. But there is no law against starting an opposition trust and, one, in operation, there the competitive system comes in again. The trusts, therefore, must continue to absorb other trusts or else fight, and with a war on in rates or prices, the customers cannot fail to get the benefit of it all. If such a conflict be carried so far as to strain the resources of the trusts involved, they will dissolve, go bankrupt, and the several constituent corporations will be forced to resume business for themselves.

In fact, any one with ordinary reasoning powers must see at this time that the trusts are not to be feared. Gulliver in the flying island of Laputa met people who were dreadfully worried over the possibility of some stray comet swooping the sun with its tail and bringing the world to an end on this account only a few million years hence. The same thing applies to the calamity howlers who see nothing but death, destruction and despair in the trusts. Such combinations of capital were brought about inevitably by the conditions of business. In time those conditions may be altered and as soon as this shall come to pass it may be taken as a certainty that the trusts will fall of their own weight.

BIG STRIKE WILL BEGIN
NEXT MONDAY MORNING.Oakland Iron Works to Close Down
—Employers in San Francisco Organize.

The Oakland Iron Works will close down Monday and hundreds of men will be thrown out of employment. The unionists demand ten hours' pay for nine hours' work. The directors of the corporation refuse to concede the demand. The men will refuse to work Monday.

C. S. Booth, president of the corporation, said: "We cannot meet the demand of the men. If they refuse to work, then we will shut down Monday."

SAN FRANCISCO STRIKE.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—The indications are that this city will see the largest shut-down next week ever in the history of the State. The employers have thoroughly organized and are ready to close up stores and shops. This is what the San Francisco Trade Journal has to say on the important subject:

"The growth of labor unions has been quite rapid within the past two years, but more particularly within the past twelve months. There is hardly a calling but has organized or is organizing into a union. At one time the unions embraced the better class or skilled employees, but now the laborer, with many hardly able to speak the English language, and whose calling does not require any degree of skill, being largely automatic, are organizing unions and joining forces with the others. These organizations are so far reaching and so strong that they dictate to employers in several branches of business and manufacture who shall and who shall not be employed, what pay they shall receive, and how many hours shall constitute a day's work. Some have gone so far as to say to whom employers shall sell or buy, as the case may be. This has caused employers to organize, as they claim, in self-protection, for the purpose of conducting their business as they see fit.

"They say they have stood by employers during the last depression, which entailed losses extending over a period of from two to four years. It is not right, neither is it fair, for the laborer to assume dictatorial methods and run the business in which they, the employers, have their capital invested, and in which they have inherent rights. They claim that it is far better to close up and not attempt to do business with so many strings tied to it. Our exchanges from leading trade centers on this Coast state that the same feeling with employers, as outlined above, is felt and that they are uniting in a general move for the purpose of closing down entirely unless they can run their business without the 'shalls and shanties' from these interested only in drawing their wages. If the above is a right diagnosis of the situation, there is far more serious than the striking has any idea of. In its solution before affairs reach a crisis, clear heads unclouded by prejudice or biased by self-interest, must rule.

"In San Francisco the issue appears to be clearly defined. It is not a question of hours of work or schedule of wages, but whether the employers can be compelled to agree to employ none but union laborers. The employers claim that this demand violates one of the organic principles of this government and declare they will never accede to it, no matter how long they have to wait for the answer. The attitude is probably best shown in the following 'declaration of principles' upon which this organization is founded:

"This association is formed to promote the mercantile and manufacturing interests of the Pacific Coast. Its policy is not dictated by a spirit of aggression, but it shall be the earnest endeavor of its members to prevent friction and to peacefully settle all disputes that may arise between employer and employee.

"We believe that the frequent strikes and boycotts, which, in the absence of any effective restraining power, have prevailed in this community and may hereafter prevail there, are dangerous to its industries; and this association of employers is formed to check these growing evils.

"We recognize the right of labor to organize to ameliorate its condition, and we, as employers, will not trespass on that right by refusing employment to any one solely because he does or does not belong to any labor organization; and we also denounce any coercion on the part of any employer whereby employees are compelled against their free will and volition to join labor organizations for the purpose of obtaining or holding employment from said employer; such action being tantamount to the liberties of the individual and in consequence productive only of harm to the community.

"We have no wish to interfere with this indisputable right of labor to organize, but we believe that the organization and the federation of labor should be followed by the organization and the federation of the employers of labor, to the end that neither party may be tempted to overstep the bounds of right, reason and justice, nor to subvert those principles of the freedom of the individual, upon which the government and civilization of this country are founded."

Alameda schoolboys declared a strike because they were not given a half holiday to see the President. The principal will probably also declare one when the boys return to their desks and will give the young rebels an opportunity to participate in it one at a time.

The Trustees of San Leandro have limited the speed of automobiles to eight miles an hour. They want the natives to get a chance to see the machines as they pass through town.

DR. TODD MADE

A FINE RECORD.

Retires From Health
Office and Takes Up Practice.

If the adage that coming events cast their shadows before proves infallible, the indications are, expressed in Dr. J. H. Todd's recent resignation from the Health Department, that the latter might soon be called upon to combat with a fresh and perhaps serious outbreak of small-pox, has partially come true.

The small-pox epidemic at the Institute for the Deaf, Dumb and Blind has caused endless alarm, and during this week several new cases have been reported to the Health Officer.

When Dr. Todd retired from the position of Health Officer to which he was appointed under Mayor Snow's administration in 1899, he left with the office a clean bill of health so far as small-pox cases are concerned. Scarcely, if ever before has Oakland had the good fortune of boasting upon so prompt and vigorous an administration of the Health Officer, and seldom has the health of the city been maintained more carefully and successfully than during the past two years, notwithstanding at one time during that period there was every indication of an epidemic spreading over the city, and Health Officer Todd had in addition to combat with the vigorous protests of residents of neighborhoods where he had gathered a certain number of patients so as to properly execute a strict quarantine and prevent the possible spread of the dread disease. The manner in which Dr. Todd handled these cases, and in fact, all cases for the welfare of the city's health in the face of the absence of a suitable post office, was most commendable, and won for the then Health Officer praises from every section of the city.

It was during the fever heat that preceded the department's shaking, when rumors of changes and the removal of Dr. Todd flew thick and fast, that he expressed his sorrow that the Health Department was being dragged into politics. He said at that time, true to the ethics of his profession, that he hoped in the event his term of office was to end, some one who would have the health of the city at heart might succeed him. "For," he said, "you may rest assured, you cannot tell at what moment the capabilities of the Health Department might be called upon to combat with a siege of small-pox."

In view of his retirement from the Health Department, Dr. Todd will now be enabled to devote all of his time to his practice. He has been a physician here for over 20 years and has a host of friends in the community. Dr. Todd is very popular in the profession.

A Cross Clerk

Is a rarity. For the most part the young woman behind the counter is smiling and obliging, though her back hurts, her side pains, or her head throbs distractingly. The wonder is, not that a clerk is sometimes irritable, but that she so rarely shows irritation, when every nerve is quivering and she hardly knows how to hold her head up.

The nervous condition, headache and weakness, which are the results of irregularity or a diseased condition of the womanly organs, can be entirely cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the functions, stops creaking drains, strengthens the nervous system and promotes the general health of the entire body.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free of charge. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Bureau of Female Prescription, 153 N. 2nd St., St. Louis, Mo.

"Having used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' during the past year," writes Mrs. Mattie Long, of Mount Valley, Pa., "I can truly recommend the medicines for all female weakness. I have used several bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' which I consider a great blessing for weak women. I was so nervous and discouraged that I hardly knew what to do. Your kind advice and treatment helped me wonderfully. Thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure dizziness and sick headache.

Jim Hale (2-12) won, Wardman (6-5) second, Dunfree (12) third. The other starters were Platterer, Mareta, Time, 1:21.

TRANSIT COMPANY IS BEATEN.

Judge Hall has denied the motion of the Oakland Transit Company for a non-suit in the case of J. D. Miller against the company for $20,000 damages. In denying the motion Judge Hall held that it had been shown that the defendant had been negligent, and further that the car had been run at a very high rate of speed at the time of the accident to Miller.

Miller was struck by one of the company's cars at Ashby and Shattuck avenues, Berkeley, on April 28, 1899, and received permanent injuries for which he asks the damages.

PAINTERS FALL FROM A HIGH SCAFFOLD.

Harry Floyd and A. Jackwith, painters employed at 1211 Telegraph avenue, fell sixty feet from a scaffold and both escaped with their lives. The men were at work upon the scaffold when a rope broke, throwing them from their position near the eaves to the ground sixty feet below.

Jackwith escaped uninjured, but Floyd's right arm was fractured just below the elbow and his face and body badly skinned and bruised. Floyd was first taken to the Receiving Hospital, where his wounds were dressed by L. Strattin, and he was later removed to his home at Park street and Euclid avenue, Alameda.

FORTUNES ARE MADE IN OIL.

Gov. Gage Planning Editor Otis and the Presidential Trip.

(Special to the Tribune.)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—Although it might have been imagined that the visit of the President would temporarily subside all matters of local political interest, exactly the contrary has been the case. For it brought to town, statesmen and camp followers by the score, and the result has been that around their favorite lounging-places—the Palace, Lick, and Grand—they have been thrashing over old fights and discussing new ones and everything pertaining to them.

It is only at times such as the present one that the political gulf has an opportunity to meet outside of its regular gatherings of State conventions, the Legislature and so forth. The various local organizations are of course always more or less hard at it and in while a prominent worker from the country drops into town, but, as a rule, in off-seasons the only way the various elements keep in touch with one another is by personal correspondence or through the medium of the press reports so they naturally are taking advantage of the present opportunity to find out what is going on throughout the State.

From every quarter comes a confirmation of what has been an open secret for the past year, that is, that Governor Gage will be a candidate for reelection. It is true that no man can get the found to whom the Governor has stated such an intention but, there is little work for an official declaration in view of the open way his friends are at work in his interest. It stands to reason that he would call them off if he did not want things to go the way they are running and the very fact that they have not been checked in their operations is in itself proof enough that his cause will be officially shield in the ring when the right time comes.

Those who have kept track of the mounting of events during the political seasons corresponding to the present one can locate a more marked indication of what is going on than appears upon the surface. For instance when it has been patent that a Republican year is ahead, all emotional candidates have been in evidence upon every side, the list this time four years ago numbering no less than fifteen active aspirants for the place. Now, however, outside of the names of Governor Gage and Senator Tom Flint a voice is seldom heard in behalf of any one else, and it looks like a certainty that between the two named is where the contest will be. Flint who has been industriously pecking away at the gubernatorial proposition for the past six or eight years is devoting most of his energies just now in Governor Gage's home district south of Tehachapi and will probably be the representative of the anti-Gage element down that way, that is to say of Otis and the few people he controls.

That there is going to be lots of bad blood in the sunny south is more certain than ever, for Otis's treatment of the Governor during the Presidential event has unshaken knives that will not be laid away until many a scalp has been taken. The Governor's friends are all determined to get even for the insult openly paid him and as, on the other hand, Otis wields the most powerful and practically the only Republican paper in the southern part of the State he will have lots of ammunition in his locker. However, the doughty Brigadier-General's fusillade will consist of little more than blank and blankety-blank cartridges of mere words for the Republican organization in Los Angeles county is controlled by Governor Gage and his friends and it looks as if Otis cannot even get a footing in it.

HOW OTIS OPERATED.

According to the stories told by the Southern now in town Otis effected his Presidential coup in the following manner: The Chamber of Commerce is the representative organization of the manufacturers and merchants in the southern city. They are all dependent more or less upon the newspapers from the standpoint of advertising and so forth and they therefore live in mortal dread of incurring the antagonism of Editor Otis. When, then, the committees for the Presidential reception were being talked of, the Chamber of Commerce inspired by Otis jumped in and ran the whole thing. Mayor Snyder of Los Angeles letting slip through his fingers the opportunity he officially had to be the king pin of the entire proposition.

After the Chamber of Commerce had made up its committees and they had got down to work it soon became apparent that the reception was entirely dominated by Otis. No one however, believed that he would venture to exercise his spleen at the time of a visit from the President and there was in consequence a general surprise when as the crucial hour arrived it was seen what he had done. Many of the members realizing that it would be a grossly discourteous as well as an impolitic move to turn down the Governor of the State and the Senate United States Senator merely to permit Otis to elect out personal revenge, endeavored to change the program at the last moment but they were too late, for Otis had got a tight hold on the strings and not an inch leverage would he grant.

The result was that the Brigadier-General succeeded in disorganizing the entire community by his action and brought down upon it condemnation from every quarter of the State. It must have been mighty poor satisfaction to him, however, for although he succeeded in shutting out the two men in California who were most entitled to the honors of the occasion he did so at the personal expense of being held up from one end of the State to the other as having abused California's well-known hospitality and of having brought odium upon the city where such an insult was openly perpetrated. But this is not all by any means and by the time Otis sums up all the offenses he will discover that he "bit off more than he could chew." The President and his Cabinet Ministers were in ignorance of what was going on while they were in Los Angeles but the whole matter was rectified to them after their arrival here and Otis's petty revenge was outlived in every detail. The result was that although being guests of the State they did not feel like expressing themselves openly regarding one of their hosts it was plain to see what they thought about him. The President who therefore entertained a high opinion of Otis, at first seemed as if he could hardly believe what was told him, but when proofs were presented he quickly grasped the situation and it is safe to say that Otis has fallen one thousand per cent in his opinion instead of gaining anything by his spitefulness.

TURBID THE TABLES.

An interesting incident is narrated in connection with the affair that shows to what extent Otis endeavored to carry his revenge and how badly he was punished for his pains. When the deal was given out for the handling of the Presidential party upon its arrival at the Wolfskill depot, Brigadier-General Lask and the National Guardsmen were allotted a prominent position in the column and were apparently significantly favored. It dawned upon Lask though that by virtue of his commission he and his men should be in attendance upon the Governor so he looked upon the program to see how that duty had been awarded. To his surprise he did not find any provision for the Governor at all.

Going to Otis' man who was running things he said, "Where is the Governor to be in the make-up of the program?"

The committee man exactly suggested that the Governor would not be on hand. Lask insisted, however, that he would, and then becoming suspicious, started around to find out what carriages had been provided for the Executive and his party.

To his surprise and disgust he discovered that not a vehicle of any description had been engaged for that purpose. The grossness of this insult can be realized when it is remembered that there would be no means of transportation up town whatever, even the street cars being closed down for the hour or so that the Presidential parade was on. Otis' plan therefore was to have Governor Gage not only cut out of the procession but compelled to walk up town.

Lask, however, promptly knocked out the whole scheme. He threw overboard the committee's arrangements as far as the National Guard was concerned, personally engaged a number of carriages for the Governor and his party and then forming an escort of honor with the Guardsmen he refused to take the place in the parade given him by the committee but awaited the Governor.

The result was that when the Presidential party disembarked at the depot instead of the Governor or attendants as Otis had planned he was received with all the honors befitting his station and escorted by the National Guardsmen took place in the procession and went up town in State.

Otis gnashed his teeth with rage when he saw how his scheme had fallen through, and the Governor was highly pleased when later he learned what had happened. Although Lask is a Democrat, it is not very likely that he will lose his Brigadier Generalship as long as Governor Gage is in control of affairs, for the Executive appreciates very much the stand taken by his lieutenant.

DE VRIES' CONDITION.

Personal advices from New York state that Marion De Vries is still in a precarious condition and that his doctors have ordered a change of scene for him as soon as it is possible for him to undertake a journey. He has decided, therefore, to take a trip to Egypt or come to California for a few months, for there is no place where his health improves so rapidly as out here on his native heath. Life in New York certainly does not agree with him, for he has lost weight steadily since taking up his official residence there as General Appointer. It would be one of the vagaries of fortune if, after apparently being favored so much, he should not be able to enjoy his good luck. Though not yet 30 years of age, De Vries has not a little position of $750 per annum with an authority and dignity attached to the place that makes it one of the most pleasant in Federal channels. It would be the height of ill fortune, therefore, should he be compelled by the state of his health to abandon it, as he certainly would have to do if he found himself growing much worse than he has been of late.

FORTUNES IN OIL.

Among the gossip brought up from the south by the week's visitors is as to the growing prosperity of ex-Senator Bulla. Bulla is said to be fast heading towards the hundred thousand dollar mark, a remarkable achievement when it is remembered that at the time he was in the State Legislature a couple of years ago he was comparatively a poor man. He has made a fortune in oil, though, and concerning this development there is quite an interesting little story.

It appears that Bulla has a law partner named Wilson, and when the promoters of an oil company came in one day to make arrangements for the legal work of incorporating and attending to their business generally, the proposed fee in the proportion of half the large fee in stock instead of an ordinary one in ready cash. Bulla was willing enough to go ahead on those lines, but his partner was not. Wilson thought that a lawyer should be paid for his work instead of having to run chances on what might prove to be a worthless enterprise, and he insisted on his point so high that the promoters prepared to take their work to some other office.

Bulla, however, did some hard thinking on the proposition, and he came to the conclusion that the speculation was a good one. He accordingly announced that he would compensate Wilson with one-half the regular cash fee just as if the full amount had been paid. The promoters were delighted, and he would therefore take all the stock himself. This was satisfactory all around, and the deal consequently went through on those lines.

The company got down to business directly after incorporating, and as soon as it had raised enough money commenced boring. Oil was struck, and up went the price of the stock at rocket-like rapidity. The few that Bulla had received in paper bounded almost at a phenomenal rate, and those who kept track of the transaction say that he cleared up the sum of $75,000 by the venture. He certainly has what is called the Indian sign out to that effect, for he is building a $150,000 house and giving other marked signs of a sudden acquisition of wealth.

Bank Commissioner A. W. Barrett of Los Angeles is another of the political brotherhood in that part of the State who is credited with having accumulated lots of shekels out of the new industry, those who describe his powers in that line alluding to it with the expression that "he has made a fortune in oil."

Congressman McLaughlin of Pasadena is also said to have got upon his feet again in the same manner. "The oil man," says McLaughlin, "has made a fortune in oil." The program arranged for the gentlemen's night at the Reliance Athletic Club next Tuesday evening consists of three events which give unusual promise of good sport. The contents will be a ten-round bout between Jack Capelles and James McFadden, a ten-round event between Kid McFadden and Bobby Martin, and a fifteen-round go with Kid Williams and George Johns as the principals.

In arranging these contests special care has been exercised to get the men so matched that the fight will be a titanic one. If the men come up to the records there should not be a dull moment for the spectators from the time the going sounds. While some of the contestants are new men in the local field they come highly recommended. Those who have been seen before have been adding speed and cleverness to their admirers will doubtless have no cause to regret placing their confidences in their ability to win.

The newly-elected Board of Directors intends that the entertainments of the club in the future shall be of the highest standard which has been the pride of the club members in the past. With that end in view, every effort has been made to have the coming event of especial merit.

Millions of dollars are being poured into the oil business in California. The oil business is now so large that he has an office in the Crocker Building, with E. A. Horn of Oakland, who has also faced exceedingly well at the business. John A. Bunting's success has been delayed upon many times, his fortune being now rated in at the millions, while Judge Bolton and Samuel S. Knowles, the real estate men, and other Oaklanders who have also had a goodly share of the riches that have been developed along these lines of late.

HACKS FROM ALASKA.

Major Charles Tilden of Alameda, who was to Manila with the first California contingent of the war, has been doing some more adventurous travel, for he got in this week from a trip to the best-hid of Alaska. The prime object of his expedition was to visit his mining interests at Seward, and after that was accomplished he took a trip into the interior and had a very eventful experience.

He says the climate up there when he got was delightful, for although perpetual snow, glaciers and seas of ice abound on all sides, the cold is not unbearable, but on the contrary invigorating. He did not have a cold all the time he was there, and only succeeded in contracting one after his return to the glorious climate of California.

HERE AND THERE.

Senator Custer is down from Meyersville for a couple of days' visit.

Edith Bremer of the State Board of Equalization is making the rounds of his friends.

Building and Loan Commissioner McCabe was summoned hastily to Modesto Thursday by the news that his mother is lying at the family home there.

Speaker Pennington is in the city. As an ex-officio member of the Board of University Regents he came up to participate in the convocation exercises at Berkeley this week.

Dr. Matthews, secretary of the State Board of Health, is paying one of his periodical visits to town.

Judge Lawlor of this city is making an energetic canvass in behalf of the Steve White monument fund. He is chairman of the local committee, and as he was a warm personal friend of the late Senator can be understood why he is so solicitous for the success of the movement.

OAKLAND HARBOR NEWS NOTES.

Complaint Made About the Alameda Dumps.

When a place becomes so filthy that people living in the neighborhood are compelled to spend their money in more wholesome districts to be able to sleep, and men are laid up with illness caused from inhaling the foul odors, there are getting decidedly bad, and something should be done. The above is an exact account of the condition of the neighborhood around the Webster street dump.

Some time ago the Trustees of Alameda decided an invitation to all the garbage men in both East Oakland, Oakland proper and Alameda to bring their garbage cart dump it on the road between the Webster street bridge and the Alameda car barn. The invitation was accepted with much rejoicing on the part of the garbage men, who proceeded to dump, not only the cans, paper and light garbage on the place, but 15th a well. As the pile has grown, it has the stench, and at times the vicinity becomes unbearable. Complaints were made, but to no avail. Alameda would not propose to pay for the grading of a road when it can get it done for nothing. Finally a petition was gotten up and signed by such people as Hay & Wright, the United Engineer Workers and to many others who were compelled to breathe the foul air with a crowd at times from this cesspool of rotteness.

The Trustees were requested to stop men from dumping garbage in this neighborhood. But the request was in vain. There were those on the Board who knew that nothing foul was being dumped there, and the matter was stopped. Later another attempt was made, but it met with the same fate as the first one. It was placed on the shelf. As a result of all this foulness, people in the vicinity are continually complaining of being ill, and a year ago Charles E. Enay, who owned the Webster street bridge, was unable to attend to his duties. Mr. Enay is in a bad condition and says the terrible odors which prevail in this vicinity are the cause of his illness. L. Taylor, who keeps a boat house on the other side of the bridge, has been sick for more than a week, and attributes his condition to the same source.

"At times," says Mr. Taylor, "I have been compelled to leave my room while I sleep at the boat house and spend the night in Oakland on account of the stench which blows in from that place."

Something should be done. The lives of these people should not be endangered by continuing such a nuisance. It is actually known that there are four barrels of dead fish and decayed vegetables have been dumped on this place at the time from one cart, which is only one of many that do the same thing all the time without fear of the law, which apparently renders such actions.

THE LAUNCHING

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—In the presence of 50,000 people, the battleship Ohio, the newest bulwark of the United States navy, glided down the ways at the Union Iron Works in San Francisco at 12:25 o'clock this afternoon.

Flugs innumerable fluttered in the breeze. Cheers of thousands of human beings rent the air. Discordant whistles of hundreds of steam whistles, varying in ear-splitting quality from the pun, piping of a gasoline launch to the ponderous tones of a battleship's siren gave her a welcome such as never before was extended to a fighting bride of the sea.

From the scores of warships of greater or less degree and from the guns of the multitude of sailing craft wedged about the scene, belched flames of the clouds of smoke and tornadoes of sound, encouraging the mighty mass of steel to start about the ways and giving forth a shout of gladness when she had landed safely in the waters of the bay.

UNEXAMPLED SCENE.

No such scene was ever witnessed in San Francisco before. A thousand sailing craft of all descriptions littered the bay. They ranged from the pleasure single-paddle canoe to the Leviathan battleships of Uncle Sam. From jibs, gaff, main, fore and mizzen mast, spar, lightening-rod and shrouds fluttered brightly-colored flags, pennons, and pennants, like strings of gaily butterflies which seemed to be magnified for the occasion.

Every one of these craft was loaded to the gunwale with miscellaneous collections of humanity, and there were few among them whose curiosity did not prompt them to crowd on one side of the craft and cause them to list almost to the point of careening.

REJOICING.

From every quarter came sounds of martial music and, at times, light, tripping measures told that some of the excursionists were indulging in the pleasures of the dance.

TRUE PATRIOTISM.

In that plethora of marine vessels, and in the glut of humanity which backed the ships and rendered almost the sunset hills beyond, with all its curiosity, there was everywhere and in everything apparent a spirit of patriotism in which party feeling and selfishness were lost to view. It was not Republicanism nor Democracy nor even McKinleyism. It was pure and unadulterated love of country, the expression of which would have repaid, a dozen times, the time used, and the expense incurred in witnessing it.

While the launching is to be considered a national holiday, yet the expression was, in a certain sense, Ohio day. The buckeye State was not only represented by the President and the officers of that commonwealth, but all the States of the Union were represented by their respective governors. There were two large barges full of them. These buckeyes were members of the Societies of Sons of Ohio, which have been formed in all cities of this State, which have been organized since the inauguration of the Presidential tour. Some of these had come from distant parts of the State and not a few from foreign lands. They had taken up their residence in this State, and were here to witness the launching of their native State.

Can't you remember the days when all watches were made in small shops, mostly by hand, and a good one cost $200 or more? Then came the large Elgin and Waltham companies, who, by system, division and arrangement of labor and machinery, make a good watch for less than half the old way.

You can still pay the $200, if you want to, but where is the advantage?

This is true, too, of Carriages. You can give the small builder, in the old-fashioned shop, double the amount of money that is necessary to get what you want, and, of course, he can use it. On the other hand it has been made possible by large factories to build modern vehicles of all kinds at less than half the cost of the old way, and the vehicles are better, not only in style, but in workmanship and finish. Why furnish the small, out-of-date shop $200 to build a vehicle which can be built for $100 in a modern up-to-date, well-directed Carriage Factory?

Our Factory at SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

Employs 2,300 men.
Has on hand, at all times, 50,000,000 feet of lumber piled in a space of one mile square, representing a value of over $1,000,000.
Builds 80,000 finished vehicles per year, and warrants every one of them.
Ships fifteen carloads of complete vehicles every working day.

"Yours Not to Reason Why."

President Patton, of Princeton University recently delivered a sermon at the Fifth Avenue Collegiate Church, his subject being "Faith." Dr. Patton spoke of the blind faith of the client who puts himself at the mercy of a lawyer in preparing an action for trial, and of the confidence the sick in entrusting themselves to the physician.

"A case of blind faith," said the clergyman. "The doctor writes out a prescription. Offense then not, you cannot read it; you don't know what it is. He tells you to take it. 'Yours not to reason why, yours but to do and die.'"

Whether or not Dr. Patton meant it, there was a distinct ripple throughout

The publishing business in the United States is now down to a second system and the various companies have their particular line of work. However there are few houses in the line in which D. C. Heath & Company are engaged. They are publishers for schools and colleges and are one of the few in the country. Recently the firm sent out another installment of the "Home and School Classics."

"The series is published both in paper and in cloth. For supplementary reading in schools and for school libraries these books are a marvel of suitability and charm."

The whole twenty-seven numbers containing the best reading for children of all ages from infancy to university age are bound in twenty-three volumes in cloth for $7.49. Some of the most interesting books in the series are "Glib and Flib," "Edgeworth's Waste Not, Want Not," "Ingleton's Three Fairy Stories," "Martineau's College Boys," "Molloy's Siege of Leyden," "Mulach's Little Lam Prince," "Nursery Rhymes," "Logan's Story of a Donkey," "Shakespeare's Comedy of Errors," "Shakespeare's The Winter's Tale," "Tales From Muchausen."
